

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing this letter on behalf of Atwell Salvage and Demolition. As a general contractor specializing in very high end custom residential and commercial construction, we are at times challenged with selective demolition needs. The only company we trust our work to when either salvage select or wholesale demolition is required, is Atwell. From the top of the organization to their clean up labor, they are professionals.

For the past four months, the Atwell Team has been performing very sensitive salvage and demolition on an Arizona Adobe built in 1929 in Paradise Valley we are restoring. The house had several remodels over the years that has covered up most of the original character. Our client, the existing owner, has stripped all that away and is restoring the house to its original 1930's character. That could not have been done without the careful and precise work by Atwell. They have also proven to be of great financial value to the project and have saved the owner thousands of dollars thru creative solutions and cost effective methods.

In short, I would only use Atwell for historic demolition and salvage. They are simply that good.
